SOME CAUSES OF LONGEVITY.
More Old People Found in Agricultural Places Than in Cities.

A German statistician who has made longevity statistics the special subject of careful researches recently published the result of his investigations in an interesting article. On account of the difficulty of obtaining full data in regard to the conditions surrounding each case of longevity on record, the deductions as to the causes favorable or unfavorable to longevity are necessarily hypothetical. The figures obtained by the statistician seem to indicate, however, that climate and the degree of civilization are among the most important factors influencing longevity. More people of over 100 years are found in the mild zone of southern Europe than in the higher latitudes, with their long and severe winters. In countries with a highly developed civilization comparatively fewer cases of longevity are found than in more primitive countries. The statistics also show that in agricultural countries the percentage of people over 100 years old is greater than in countries principally devoted to industries. Some of the figures collected are, indeed, surprising.

According to the last census the German empire has a population of about 50,000,000. Among them there are only 75 who have passed the hundredth year. France, with a population of barely 40,000,000, can boast of 213 persons who have celebrated their centennial in good health. The figures in regard to Great Britain are very interesting and significant. Of persons who have passed the century mark there are in England 146, in Ireland 578, and in Scotland only 46. Another peculiar fact is the unequal distribution of longevity in the Scandinavian peninsula. Sweden has only ten centenarians, while rugged Norway, with a population of only about 10,000,000, can boast of 23 people who have lived over five score of years. There is but five centenarians in the industrial beehive of Belgium, only two in sea girt Denmark, and not a single one in Switzerland, with its snow-clad mountains.

Figures from Russia, Austria and Italy could not be obtained. For Russia no census has ever been taken, and data as to the age of individuals are unreliable in that country, unless they are based upon official researches. Such cases would, of course, not enable a statistician to use them as a foundation for any comparison. In Austria and Italy local censuses have been made, but they were mostly confined to cities and certain industrial districts, and no complete figures could be obtained.

The most astonishing figures are furnished by the south of Europe. Spain, with a population of about 18,000,000, has 401 people over 100 years of age. Even more favorable to longevity the climate of the Balkans seems to be. Servia, with a total population of about 2,500,000, has no less than 575 people who have passed the century mark; Roumania, with a population of 5,800,000, 1,084; and Bulgaria, with a population of 3,300,000, even 3,883. In one year (1892) there were 350 persons of more than 100 years included in the mortality reports of Bulgaria. In the miniature kingdom of Servia there were, according to the census of 1892, 299 persons between 105 and 115 years of age, 152 between 115 and 125 years, 18 between 125 and 135 and three between 135 and 140.

The question, who is the oldest person in the world? has often been asked, and every now and then some claim that respect is set up in favor of some individual of uncertain age. A few years ago a report went through the continental press of Europe saying that in Russia a man had been found who had reached the ripe old age of 150 years. However, no proofs were given for that assertion. According to the researches of the German statistician, the oldest person in the world, whose age has been proved beyond a doubt, is Bruno Cotrim, a negro, who was born in Africa 150 years ago and now lives in Rio de Janeiro. Next comes a coachman in Moscow, with 140 years to his authentically established record. The oldest woman in the world is 130 years old, but does not want to have her name mentioned, because she thinks that there are many older women in this world, who might feel offended if the palm were awarded to her.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Celibacy of Popes and Priests. Peter, whom Roman Catholics count as the first pope, was married; whether his wife was alive when he was pope we do not know. St. Sylvester, pope in A.D. 313, was the son of St. Hermisdas, pope from 513 to 523; whether the wife of Hermisdas was alive during his pontificate we do not know; she may have seen her son pontiff. Although there were many papal prohibitions against clerics marrying, they were disregarded very generally, and not until Gregory VII's time, 1074, did celibacy become a law of the Roman Catholic church. Who was the last pope to marry is not stated. Regular priests—members of the monastic orders—take the triple vows of poverty, chastity and obedience; secular priests—those not members of any order—are under the rule of celibacy, and take a vow as well. —Chicago Chronicle.

Servants and Their Lovers. In some places servants who are not allowed lovers by hard-hearted mistresses have recourse to all manner of curious tricks to make their suitors conscious of a "path made clear." During the absence of their mistress they place some handy articles on the window-sash to convey such information.

A burning lamp placed in a curious way in a window bottom, or a blind drawn partly down, are only a few of the many signs employed by love-sick domestics. "We should never indulge in such trickery," a trim housemaid said the other day, "if mistresses would treat us as human beings. We are quite as anxious to marry and settle down as she was; and the very fact of her being so stringent irritates us into unhandy dealings."—Tit-Bits.

WILL NOT EXCHANGE SILVER
DOLLARS FOR GOLD.

The Administration while professing to be friendly to silver is doing all in its power to prevent it from being more extensively used as a medium of exchange. As proof of this the San Francisco banks have been notified by the Treasury Department that it would no longer exchange standard silver dollars for gold. The reason assigned for this order is that there is more silver certificates in circulation than there are silver dollars in the Treasury. Silver half dollars will continue to be exchanged for gold but no silver dollars will be exchanged for gold coin.

What sort of an apology have our gold friends here in Nevada to make for this discrimination against standard dollars? There is abundance of silver bullion in the Treasury and a mint now idle at Carson to coin it. There is a large profit to the Government in coining the bullion and, as the expenditures of the Government are in excess of the receipts, the conversion of the bullion into coin would aid in preventing a deficit besides giving employment to sixty or eighty persons and preventing the machinery in the mint from becoming worthless from rust caused by disuse. The people are demanding more standard dollars for business transactions, but instead of coining them for the convenience of the public the Administration prefers to keep millions of ounces of silver bullion lying idle and useless in the Treasury vaults to offending the money kings by coining it into dollars.

How farcical, how hypocritical are the pretensions of the Administration on the silver question! Mr. Reed's Congress appropriates $100,000 to defray the expenses of a commission to Europe to dissuade the money lenders of London, Paris and Hamburg, who are profiting by the gold standard, from discrediting silver as money, and the same Administration here at home refuse to coin the bullion in the Treasury vaults into standard dollars to accommodate the public who want such dollars in exchange for gold.

Was ever a Government more inconsistent than ours on the money question? We send commissioners to Europe ostensibly to further the cause of silver and at home, with abundance of silver bullion in the Treasury and at least one mint rusting in idleness, will not coin sufficient silver dollars to supply the demands of business men, who want such dollars in exchange for gold coins.

The Treasury Department, however, is willing to exchange half dollars, which are a legal tender to the amount of $5 only, for gold, but it will not exchange standard dollars, which are a legal tender to any amount, for twenty dollar gold pieces. The scheme of the money kings seems to be to limit the amount of full legal tender money in circulation and the Government renders them all the assistance in its power to carry out their designs. It is difficult for straightforward people, who believe in fair dealing, to account for the peculiar idiosyncrasies of the goldbugs. He will tell you with apparent candor that it is wrong to foist 50-cent dollars on creditors and yet the Government, which he controls and directs, while refusing the demand for them, does not hesitate to issue half dollars, two of which contain twenty-four grains less of silver than the standard dollar, and encourage their circulation.

"THE GREAT BOODLER."

Colonel Conger, formerly a Congressman from Ohio and now a member of Governor Bushnell's staff, is creating dissensions in the ranks of his party in that State. He is opposed to Marcus Aurelius Hanna and calls him "the great boodler," and says he will tell the inside facts regarding the Dingley scientific schedules and show that every laboring man in the country is a silent contributor to Hanna's corruption fund. Colonel Conger's threat is causing Mr. Hanna much uneasiness, hence the speaking members of the Cabinet are detailed to go to Ohio and help out the great boodler by appealing to the passions and prejudices rather than to the reason and intelligence of the voters. Had the charges made by Colonel Conger originated in the camp of the opposition they could be disposed of by the great boodler with a wave of the hand, after the fashion of the Podsnap, but coming from Republican sources and from as prominent a man as Colonel Conger, they cannot be brushed aside as mere falsehoods of the enemy. Conger has a large following in Ohio and though his purse is not so heavy as the great boodler, his words are more weighty and have greater effect with the unpurchasable element of the Republican party. The election takes place three weeks from to-day and while many influential Republicans are opposed to Mr. Hanna the sack is on his side, as are all the corporations and monopolies in the State, and they may succeed in electing him.

F. A. Spriggs of New York has been appointed agent of the Indian agencies of Nevada. Another of McKinley's waves. Where do the Nevada aspirants get off? Will the same rule work in the remaining Federal appointments?

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

One hundred carpenters employed on the Omaha Trans-Mississippi Exposition grounds struck yesterday. They ask that the carpenters' union be recognized and that skilled labor alone be employed.

Ramon Blanco, the new Captain-General of Cuba, announces that he will act with great energy against the insurgents. He adds that it is his desire to end the horrors of war and to establish peace.

E. Guilbault, a former Colorado miner, reports the country around Cook's Inlet fully as rich as the Klondike and that the climate is much milder. Miners there are taking out from $25 to $100 per day.

Attorney General Fitzgerald of California was admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court yesterday. Mr. Fitzgerald will appear in behalf of the State of California in the Durrant appeal case. Mr. Fitzgerald will move to advance the case on the docket.

Several places in Texas have quarantined against Galveston on account of the report that yellow fever exists there. Eighteen new cases were reported at New Orleans yesterday. Five new cases were reported at Mobile, but no deaths. Two new cases are reported at Galveston, and possibly a third. There is considerable uneasiness.

A White Pine Robbery.

W. J. Griswold, a sheepman, who was ranging his sheep in the neighborhood of Cherry Creek, White Pine county, was attacked last Sunday by two men and robbed. After he had handed over four dollars all he had, without resistance, they ordered him to face about and walk a head of them. Mr. Griswold obeyed the order and after going a short distance one of the men shot him in the back of the head, the ball striking the skull near the base of the brain. He fell and the robbers supposing they had killed him went on their way, first however taking their victim's horses and shooting their own.

Mr. Griswold subsequently regained consciousness and found that the ball had simply torn through the scalp. He immediately walked to a neighboring ranch and told his story and the officers were notified. A posse of citizens was formed and started in pursuit of the robbers, but their trail was soon lost.

The Sheriffs of White Pine and Eureka Counties have descriptions of the men and have deputies stationed at points where they are likely to pass. If they are caught it will probably go hard with them as the people are wrought up over the cowardly affair.

Unable to Decide What to Do

The time for doing annual work on mining claims has arrived and many a holder finds himself unable to decide what is best to do. With silver at its present price many claims appear not worth the expenditure necessary to hold them, yet these same claims represent an outlay of much money in the past and the holders hate to give them up. Heretofore the difficulty would be met by allowing the claims to run out and relocating them, but under the new law this will not answer, as nearly one hundred dollars worth of work is necessary on a claim before its location is complete. The result will be that many prospects will be allowed to lapse, to await a more favorable condition of things.—Pioche Record.

Mono County Will Appeal.

The sheep case in which this county is interested will be argued by Attorney Miner before the State Supreme Court at Los Angeles next Thursday. It is to be hoped the result will settle the disputed questions for good and all. Mono county will appeal the case against Flannigan for sheep license to the tribunal named. It would have been the part of good judgment, it seems to us, for Mono county to have accepted Flannigan's offer to pay the amount of his license, subject to the decision in the Inyo cases. The county would have saved some expense, and the result would have been the same, probably, as the ultimate outcome of a new suit.—Inyo Register.

THE SACRAMENTO CAPITAL HOME
THE TRUSTEE
Delivered by Carrier

The Reno Team Plays in Bad Luck But Makes a Game Run for the Championship.

The weather on Sunday could not have been better for the great fifty-mile relay race between the Sacramento and Reno teams, had it been especially ordered. The early train from Sacramento brought the team chosen by the Capital City Wheelmen to contest with the Reno team and maintain their record of the coast champions or gracefully surrender the palm to the sagebrush team. Some thirty members and friends of the Capital City boys accompanied them, and while enthusiastic in their praises of their own team were willing to grant that they had foemen worthy the name in the Reno Wheelmen and that they would have to run to maintain their laurels.

The Sacramentans were loud in their praises of the condition of the track, frequently asserting that it was superior to the Sacramento course in many particulars.

Long before the noon hour conveyances, public and private, were rushing about the streets and the towns presented a scene of life, although it was Sunday, seldom equalled on the best days of the annual fair. The Virginia & Truckee special had already arrived, bringing from five to six hundred visitors from the Comstock, Carson and along the line. By 1 o'clock it was estimated that from fifteen to eighteen hundred spectators were at the track and some put the number at two thousand. While the natural home feeling was freely expressed for the Reno boys, many were desirous of seeing the Sacramento team beaten, if beaten at all, by a hard contest, and granting them the consideration of the handicap that they had travelled the night before, also of being on a strange track and in a higher altitude than they were accustomed to.

Willie McDonald, a cute little boy of seven years, was the mascot of the Sacramento team and as the Sacramento riders passed the timers' stand on their respective relays Willie blew loud and long blasts on a horn provided for him, to encourage his favorites.

Promptly at 1:30 the first relay was called and Thos. Welsh of Sacramento and H. Snare of Reno came to the starting. A good start was made, but Snare had hardly gone a quarter of a mile when he had the misfortune to break a toe clip, disarranging one of his pedals, also wrenching his handle bar. He rode his mile under great difficulty, Welsh leading him by over a quarter. It becoming apparent to the Sacramento boys that the man was at a disadvantage, they rushed one of their relief wheels out to him as he started on his second mile, and by the time he had made the circle again another wheel was provided. Snare held his own, however, and notwithstanding the changes he had to make and the consequent loss of time, he was only led a little over a quarter of a mile at the close of his relay.

Shaver of Reno and Riddle of Sacramento followed, and both men made a great run, but Shaver was too much for his competitor and steadily gained on him, closing up the loss until only a short gap remained at the end of the first mile.

Thomson of Reno and Shearer of Sacramento came to the score and picked up the relay, and Thompson closed the gap on his first mile, each rider making the pace on alternate miles and closing their five-mile run almost even.

Hamp of Sacramento came next, the latter setting the pace for the first mile, when, under the rule of courtesy in long distance riding, which is obligatory, Patterson wanted Hamp to lead, but the latter declined. The result was that both slowed down and chewed the rag until a coiner was sent out telling Hamp to set the pace every other mile. This relay soiled to dampen much of the enthusiasm of the race, and when the two riders came in they were roundly hissed by the audience.

Johnson of Reno and Tenbosch of Sacramento then took the run, and it was a pretty race, neither having the best of it until the fourth mile, when Johnson, in swerving into the pole to take the pace, struck Tenbosch's hind wheel and was thrown. Although seriously hurt, he mounted his wheel and made his run, but the delay had caused a loss of half a mile.

Hallauer of Sacramento and Manuel Simas were next in line, but there was little change in the positions of the teams, both riders being very evenly matched.

Payen of Sacramento and Eaton of Reno were about evenly matched, and at the end of the five-mile relay the relative positions of the teams remained the same.

Then came Nat. of Reno and Young of Sacramento, and the first three miles was about an even contest, but on the fourth Charlie Nash, who had not been well for several days, was substituted by Granville Johnson, who finished the relay with Sacramento in the lead about half a mile.

Stanley of Reno and Smith of Sacramento then took their runs, and people had great hopes that Stanley would run his man down and they did not

Reed, the friend who is regarded as the sultan's probable heir, is the owner of something exceedingly rare among Turks—a head of red hair. Should he succeed to the throne now occupied by his brother it is said that he will be obliged to dye his sandy locks jet black.

The English society papers are full of comment on the recent advent of a son and heir into the family of Lord and Lady Craven. It is openly announced that Lord Craven's estates, while very extensive, are heavily encumbered, but Mr. Bradley Martin has shown little inclination to come to the rescue very substantially.

The German crown prince brought down his first stag and his first chamois during his recent stay at Tegean See, as he was allowed to go out shooting several times with the duke of Theodore of Bavaria in the royal preserves among the Bavarian Alps. The imperial party twice ascended the Hirschberg in order to see the sun rise.

Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, wife of the English secretary for the colonies and daughter of W. C. Endicott, Mr. Cleveland's first secretary of war, as a special evidence of the favor in which Queen Victoria holds her has received from her majesty the gold instead of the silver jubilee medal. The gold medal was conferred, as a rule, only on royal personages.

Prince Bismarck is at present in the best of health and wonderfully fresh and cheerful for his age. He enjoys long drives daily in the neighborhood of Friedrichsruh, where his admirers lie in wait for a glimpse of him. Count Herbert Bismarck and his family are spending the summer with his father, whose one great wish is to visit Varzin, the family estate in Pomerania, where Prince Bismarck is buried.

HERE AND THERE.

Last year the United States exported $12,000,000 worth of hams—130,000,000 pounds—which England bought 103,000,000.

The Paris authorities have at last been aroused against the statue nuisance in the Luxembourg palace gardens, and have decreed for the present the number there suffice for all purposes.

A woman called at the Lewiston (Me.) police station one day recently, and asked if she could have her husband whipped; he had been scolding her. The officers suggested that the woman, who was big and strong, do the whipping herself, and she went away with the remark: "I dunno but I kin do it."

"Christ's thorn" (the palurus of southern Europe and western Asia) is a plant which has flexible branches, each leaf thereon having two sharp thorns at the base, one standing erect and the other curving downward like a hook. It is claimed it was from these branches the crown was woven which was placed on Christ's brow at the time of His crucifixion.

THE MEETING A SUCCESS.

Last night the Directors of the Agricultural Society met and went over the business of the race meeting.

They found that the affairs had been the most successful that was ever held in this city. They have settled up nearly everything and but a few bills remain unpaid, and these have not been presented. The detailed account of receipts and disbursements will be ready for the public as soon as these bills are in.—Appeal.

MIGHT RESULT SERIOUSLY.

Some jokers, presumably children, stretched a wire across the sidewalk on Virginia street last evening north of the Grand Central Hotel and two or three people at least, were tripped up and received heavy falls. This is a serious matter and parties who perpetrate such jokes are liable to get themselves into trouble. The officers were notified of it last night and a word to the wise is sufficient.

CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council met last evening.

The principal business considered was the monthly bills, also the election of Currier—PHelan—in Reno, October 11, 1897, to Rev. F. C. Lee, Stephen Currie to Miss Nella Phelan, both of Reno.

PETERSON—SCHAACK—in Reno, October 11, 1897, to Rev. Thos. P. Bradish, Peter Peterson to Miss Annie Schack both of Alvarado, Cal.
